lege, succeeding James M. Taylor.

In spite of the French aviators sent to London, the Germans have made another Zeppelin raid on the city, destroying eight lives and a good deal of property.

Those who followed the long drawn-out trial of Mayor Bell at Indianapolis were satisfied that no case had been made out against him and his acquittal was expected. There seems to have been a good deal of dirty politics in his prosecution.

The War Department refused to accede to a request made by A. O.
Stanley that Capt. Charles H. Morrow be allowed to participate in the the Kentucky campaign in behalf of his brother, E. P. Morrow, Republican nominee for Governor.

Greece has refused to aid Serbia against Bulgaria, taking the position that the present aggressive action of the latter is not purely Balkan in character and therefore is without the provisions of the Greco-Serbian treaty.

Heavier taxation on big incomes as a relief from the "disproportionate share" of governmental support borne by the poor under direct taxation was defended Tuesday by the government in a brief filed with the supreme court in the pending income tax cases.

Plans for a new American fleet within five years—practically doubling the present strength—at a cost of $248,000,000, and an increase in the personnel of the navy are included in the naval programme which soon will be submitted to President Wilson.

The Russians are credited with another great victory along the Stripa river, on the Southern East Galicia front. They have pierced the last line of the Austrian defenses along the river and have stormed one of the strongest points on the Austro-German right flank.

With the hearing of the evidence against alleged "possum hunters" about to begin at a special term of the Circuit Court in Hartford, it became known Tuesday that "Clayburne" Wilson, alleged to have been a member of the gang that killed Bob Maddox, a negro, at Rockport, is under arrest at McCook, Neb.
Sheriff McKeown has gone to Nebraska for Wilson.

A GAME OF HEARTS

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

The Willow Plate Tea Room was a cozy little bungalow with gayly striped awnings and verandas set with many little tables, and a great room inside all done in blue and white, with a border of willow-pattern plates.
The growing purr of a high-powered motor came through the open casement window. It slowed down and stopped at the gate of the Willow Plate Tea Room.

"Oh, bother!" pouted Elsie, as she went into the little kitchen and returned to the room to discover a solitary man seated at one of the whiteenameled tables. He was far from being an ill-looking specimen of masculinity, although his clean-cut features were sternly set. He did not glance up when Elsie placed a glass of water before him.

"You may bring me," he said deliberately, "a poached egg on toast," and, turning away his head, he looked out of the window.

Elsie hesitated and then marched stiffly off to the kitchen. Once there she shook her fist at the back of the unoffending stranger.

"Poached egg! And it's the one particular thing that I can't make!" she groaned.

Three trips she made into the tea room—once to set tempting pats of butter and the pot of tea before the patron, again to serve him with the burned bit of toast on which was sprawled the yellow, leathery-looking egg. The third trip was in answer to his summons.

"Please bring me another egg," he said in a tone of polite weariness.
"This one seems—er—er—rather overdone."

Elsie Wayne always remembered that August afternoon as a perfect nightmare of eggs that refused to be poached and of endless trips into the tea room to present her trophies to the grim-visaged young man at the table.

Invariably he waved her offerings away, always with that look of bored patience.

From a distant table Elsie brought the plate of pink-and-white heart-shaped cakes. These delectable morsels were favorites with Mrs. Burton's patrons.

"Those look very tempting," he said smoothly. "You did not make them."
"On the contrary, I did make them," she affirmed spiritedly.

"Indeed?" His tone was amused.
He picked up the top cake and broke it in two.

"A broken heart," he said in a musing tone. "Easy to break, but impossible to mend."

"It is not worth mending—hearts are all alike," she said, and, gathering up his dishes, she disappeared kitchenward.

She cleared a place on the table, set the egg poacher in its receptacle of boiling water, broke an egg into it, closed the lid and carefully toasted a slice of bread.

She almost shrieked with joy when she laid the buttered toast on the little blue platter and slipped the pink, white-filmed poached egg flecked with pepper onto the toast.

She had achieved a triumph. It was even more beautiful than anything Susanna had ever accomplished.

The kitchen door swung behind her little young form; in her outstretched hands she carried the silver tray and set before him the perfect poached egg.

"I think I've discovered the knack of doing it," she said.

"That's good," he said.

"Haven't you better eat it while it's hot?" she suggested.

He proceeded to eat slowly, Elsie watching each morsel as it vanished between his well-cut lips.

"Is it good?" she would ask, and always he nodded. When the blue platter was cleared he looked up suddenly.

"Once upon a time I was engaged to marry a girl. She was studying domestic science, and I thought I knew something about cookery; I've camped a lot. She couldn't manage a poached egg, though. We quarreled."

"Ah!" cried Elsie, pulling the cake plate away from his restless fingers.
"You have broken another heart!"

"Are hearts so precious?" he asked.

A tear fell from her eyes and splashed on the cracked heart cake.

"Tears will mend a broken heart," he said, taking Elsie's hand and holding it closely.

"Oh—Dick!" she sobbed softly.

"I'm sorry we quarreled," he whispered; "that's why I came. Mrs.
Burton telephoned she was going away and you were to keep shop for her—and I couldn't stay away!"

"But the motor races—"

"Fahaw!" Taking her other hand.

"I believe I can make a perfect poached egg now, Dick," she smiled through her tears. "You shall have them every morning for breakfast."

"Heaven forbid!" he groaned tragically.

"Why?"

"I loath 'em! Don't ask me why I sent you back with your dreadful samples, darling! I just wanted the exquisite pleasure of ordering you around—because—" He paused to kiss her.

"Why?" she asked again.

"Oh, because I know I shall be your slave the rest of my life!" he asserted.

Woman Past Help.

Chandler, Okla.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Ella Flowers says:
"I hardly know how to thank you for the good that Cardui has done me. Before I tried Cardui, I thought I was past help, but after taking it I was relieved at once, and gained at least 10 pounds. Everybody says I look so much better. I am still improving greatly." Many women are completely worn out and discouraged, on account of womanly weakness. Are you? Have you not tried Cardui? It only needs a few dozes to convince you that Cardui is just what you need. Try it today.
It will cure your pains.—Advertise-

No other building material offers such a low cost of maintenance as Brick.

There is literally nothing to do, year after year to the outside walls of a Brick House.

If you are building for

MUCH DEEPER THAN MEMORY

Patient Under Influence of Hypnotism May Be Made to Remember Past of Another Man.

Our natures have been formed as the result of hundreds of thoughts and actions which have disappeared entirely from our memories.

But not only do we forget what has actually happened to us; sometimes we actually remember what never happened to us.

George IV remembered that he was present at the battle of Waterloo, and this genuine but mistaken belief could not be distinguished psychologically from a true memory.

In the same way a patient under the influence of hypnotism may be made to remember another man's past. Are we to suppose that in such a case there is an actual change of identity?

If we had been able to impress upon Charles Peace all the memories of Ruskin, would Charles Peace's personality have disappeared?

Yet if this seems absurd, we are forced to conclude that there is some element of the self deeper than memory.

One of Horace Porter's Best.

In one of his famous after-dinner speeches Horace Porter once told this story: After having wrestled with about thirty dishes at this dinner, and after all this, being called upon to speak, I feel a great sympathy with that woman in Ireland who had had something of a field day on hand. She began by knocking down two somewhat unpopular agents of her absentee landlord, and was seen later in the day dancing a jig on the stomach of the prostrate form of the minister.
One of her friends admired her prowess in this direction and invited her in and gave her a good glass of whisky. Her friend said, "Shall I pour some water in your whiskey?" and the woman replied, "For God's sake, haven't I had trouble enough already today?"

Henderson Apples.

Henderson county, recognized for many years as the largest producer of apples in the State will produce over 200,000 bushels of fine apples this fall. To date both cold storages are full and growers are shipping to Louisville, Nashville, St. Louis and Evansville for storage. Forty-five thousand barrels have been stored.

WE HAVE THEM NOW—As we
